WHEAT SCATTERED AND SOWN EVENTS

Inner conflict is a reality of today's world and our lives. A marriage divided is a divorce. A nation divided results in violence and unrest. An economy divided yields poverty and injustice. A community divided becomes individualism and prejudice. Humanity divided is all these things on a global level.

We all know what it is like to live divided lives. You know those times when your outsides and your insides don't match up? That's what it means to be a house divided. You're one person at work another at home. You act one way with certain people and a different way with other people. Life gets divided into pieces. There is the work life, the family life, the prayer life, the personal life, the social life. Pretty soon we are left with a bunch of pieces.

It seems that we are forever trying to put the pieces of our lives together. That's why the crowd in today's Gospel has gathered around Jesus. That's why the religious authorities oppose him. In their own way each is trying to put the pieces of their life together but it's not working.

Jesus always stands before us as the image of unity and wholeness. He does for us what we cannot do for ourselves. He puts our lives back in order. Jesus offers a different image of what life might look like. He does so by revealing the division in our lives, the houses that cannot stand, and the crumbling of our kingdoms. That's a hard place to be. It means that change is coming. Most of us don't like that. It can be frightening.

"He has gone out of his mind," the people say. The religious authorities say, "He is possessed by Beelzebul", and "By the prince of demons he drives out demons."

It's hard to look at division and inner conflict within our lives. The beginning of wholeness, however, is acknowledging our brokenness. Where is our own house divided? How and to what extent have we created conflict and division within our relationships. In what ways do we live fragmented lives? What is it that shatters your life? Anger and resentment, greed, insecurity, perfectionism, sorrow and loss. Could it be fear, envy, or guilt?

There are all sorts of forces, things, events, sometimes even people by which our lives are broken and through which we are separated from God, others, and our self. Jesus is stronger than anything that fragments our lives. He binds the forces that divide, heals the wounds that separate, and refashions pieces into a new whole. There is nothing about your life that cannot be put back together by the love God.
